VROOOOOOOM!

L-R: Fr. Bob Charlton and Fr. Stephen Banjare bless motorcycles and their riders as they pass in front of St. Joseph Church on Spring Street in Fairhaven on Sunday, 5/7, for the annual Blessing of the Bikes. The event, which drew 412 motorcycles this year, benefits St. Joseph School. Motorcyclists braved the cold and the threat of rain, which held off until after the ride that went through back roads and ended at the Ice House for food and entertainment. Photo by Beth David.

WEST ISLAND —
A day late and many dollars short.

Well, the spring season is heating up, even if the actual temperature is not.

We have meetings coming up and public hearings and just a general, all-around awakening of the senses, the politics, and...v room vroom...motorcycle season!

So, first thing, look out as you drive, motorcycles are everywhere, so be careful. A car can handle a little fender bender much more easily than a bike, so, keep your eyes peeled. That goes for bicycles, too. Everyone's out there trying to get some fresh air.

It'll warm up, really it will.

Speaking of cars, one crashed right through the 7-11 in Fairhaven. Ouch...double ouch. See page 18 for that.

We had the annual Cherry Blossom Festival this weekend. The weather was a little difficult, with big winds and kind of cold, but nothing all that bad. The just moved the tents and still used the park for the demonstrations. See page 13 for that.

And coming up this Saturday, is the annual food drive by the National Association of Letter Carriers (see page 5). This is the easy one, folks. You just put a nonperishable item out near your mailbox. That's it. The post office will do the rest. Just like a letter, only you don't have to put a stamp on it. The amount of food collected has been going down the last few years, so let's see if we can remember this year and bump it back up. All the food goes to local food pantries.

We also have our town meeting story this week (page 4). It was pretty ho-hum, but I tried to give you the highlights. I love town meeting. We have some characters, and I love to see them.

I took a ton of pictures, so I'll be sorting through them in the next day or two and posting them up on Facebook. Be sure to check it out.

Well, there's other stuff in here, of course. While you're looking through, be sure to notice who our advertisers are and tell them you saw their ads in the Neighb News.

And while you're thinking of it, consider a donation to your favorite weekly free sheet. In addition to our advertisers, we also need readers support. Until next week then...see ya,

Town Meeting zips through 58 articles

By Beth David
Editor

Fairhaven's annual town meeting was largely a quick and uncontested affair, with Town Meeting members voting to pass just about every single article that required a vote, and finishing up just a few minutes after 12 noon. There was almost no discussion on spending items, just one or two questions on budget items, and only one "no" vote at the annual meeting, held on Saturday, 5/6, at Hastings Middle School.

The only outright rejection was for a non-spending article that was petitioned by citizens. Article 54 sought to get the town on the record as supporting an amendment to the United States constitution that would reverse the supreme court decision that allowed companies to spend unlimited funds on political races (Citizens United decision).

Ken Pottel, who petitioned the article, told TM that Citizens United "opened the floodgates" to money in all areas of politics. He said the money has a "corrupting influence" on politics and is not a "healthy thing for democracy."

He said it would move the legislation along and that 77% of voters supported the petition.

Michael Silvia told TM that he had not problem with the contents of the article, but that Town Meeting was not the place for the issue.

He said the "beauty of local government," and town meeting is that people come together to work on things, "practical things, like potholes."

"Let us reserve town meeting as a place to do town business," said Mr. Silvia.

Another TM member disagreed, saying that the issue got 77% of town support on the ballot question.

"It is a bipartisan issue," she said. "It's about democracy and getting our voices heard, whatever side you're on."

Al Benac said he believed that the issue should go to town voters in a ballot question. He said he represented other voters in his district and did not want the responsibility of choosing for them.

The vote was the only vote to be challenged, causing a count. But it did fail.

The marijuana moratorium generated some discussion, and passed easily. Planning Board chairperson Wayne Hayward noted that it was a zoning bylaw and would give the PB time to come up with zoning regulations. Voters approved recreational marijuana in November, but the state has delayed implementation of retail shops pending regulations. Municipalities around the state are passing moratoria so they can draft bylaws, but they have to wait until the state drafts its own regulations.

Resident Diane Hahn said that she supported the legalization of marijuana, but that "responsible communities" are voting to wait.

"This is happening, folks," she said.

TM member John Pond, however, spoke against "so-called recreational marijuana," and railed against the dangers and "harmful effects" on young people.

"So I say whatever we can do to keep it out of our society, we should do it," said Mr. Pond.

The moratorium passed by the obligatory 2/3 vote.

The wheelchair ramp and other renovations to the Academy, a 1798 building that now houses the town's visitors center and Historical Society museum, also garnered some discussion. The project would use $119,000 in Community Preservation Committee funds to make the building wheelchair accessible.

Mr. Benac reiterated his opposition to the changes (the appropriation failed at last year's meeting), saying that the money should be used for other things, such as widening the sidewalks around town hall.

Those opposed to the change say the historical building should not be changed.

The renovations would not only add a wheelchair ramp in the back (north side) of the building but will also rebuild the front entrance to make the stairs compliant with the American with Disabilities Act (ADA).

Mr. Benac also noted that the space is not large and the new exit in back will take more space from the visitors center. He said the ramp was not needed.

"There hasn't been a handicapped person there since he has been in that building," said Mr. Benac, which solicited a bit of laughter from members.

Diane Hahn took issue with that logic, saying there has never been a handicapped person there because they have not been able to get in the building.

David Despres, chairperson of the Historical Commission, said the changes will address three problems: the deteriorating front door, making the front steps ADA compliant, and making the whole building ADA

Fun Run for Fhvn Schools

Imagine a fun fitness event, an interactive character program, and a highly-profitable school fundraiser all in one. That's what East Fairhaven School is participating in and what's even more exciting is that we are partnering with Wood School. That's right, one fundraiser for all of Fairhaven's elementary students. This fundraiser is called the Better Together Fun Run

Here's how it works:

- Students skip, dance, walk, and run to upbeat themed music.
- Families gather pledges from people they know.
- Sponsors easily pay their pledge online or by check.

Every student gets to participate in the fun, regardless of financial participation.

The Better Together Fun Run program lasts about nine days and consists of four main parts: Pep Rally, Team Huddles, Fun Run, and Collection. The Fun Run is on Wed., 5/24, and we encourage all parents to attend to cheer on our students. The "run" will take place at Wood School and the times by grade will be announced when it gets closer. EFS students will be bused over to Wood School by grade.

The PTO boards at East and Wood have been working hard to gather sponsors and have already raised enough money to provide t-shirts to every student and staff member at both schools! Wareham recently did this event and raised almost $85,000! The money raised by East will go toward upgrading the playground for our students.

To help sponsor a student, contact EFS at (508-979-4058, or Wood at 508-979-4073.

USCG rescues kayaker, saves three from sinking boat

Kayaker survival credited to preparedness

The Coast Guard rescued a 66-year-old man Sunday, 4/30, after his kayak overturned near Baileys Mistake, Maine. The man radioed Sector Northern New England watchstanders on VHF ch. 16 at about 4:20 p.m. stating he was uncertain of his location and was unable to get back into his 17-foot kayak.

A 29-foot response boat small boat crew from Station Eastport arrived on scene and recovered the man, who was suffering mild hypothermic conditions. The crew took him to Cutler, Maine where Emergency Medical Services was waiting.

The kayaker made several good decisions that resulted in his rescue: He was wearing a dry suit that thermally protected him from the 44-degree water; He had a handheld marine radio, which he used to notify the Coast Guard; He activated a Personal Locator Beacon, directing rescuers to his position.

"The only reason he's alive is because he prepared for the worst case scenario," said Capt. Michael Baroody, commander of Sector Northern New England. "He didn't know exactly where he was, but the beacon did. And that dry suit significantly boosted his survival time."

U.S. Coast Guard and their partner agencies are committed to generating greater safety awareness among paddlers and small boat operators. Visit www.uscgboating.org, and stay tuned for local events during National Safe Boating Week, May 20-26.

USCG Coordinates rescue

The U.S. Coast Guard coordinated the rescue of three people Saturday, 5/6, after a Swedish-flagged, 32-foot sailing boat became disabled and demasted 1,200 miles east of Cape Cod.

An Emergency Position Indicating Radio Beacon (EPIRB) aboard the sailboat AELA alerted Coast Guard watchstanders to the distress. They promptly directed CG Air Station Elizabeth City, North Carolina, to launch a C-130 Hercules long-range surveillance aircraft.

Watchstanders also spoke with the father of two of the stranded men, who reported his last contact with his sons was Friday via email.

Through the Global Maritime Distress and Safety System, an international distress notification system, mariners nearby AELA were alerted to the sailboat's situation.

Three ships voluntarily participating in the Automated Mutual Assistance Vessel Rescue System (AMVER), a computer-based global ship reporting system used to determine the position of AMVER ships near a distress location, also responded to assist.

A fourth ship, the Hong Kong-flagged chemical tanker Alpine Melina, responding to the distress notification, was vectored to AELA's position by the aircrew and recovered the three men from the disabled boat early Sunday. The three men are all reported to be in good condition.

The rescued men will stay aboard Alpine Melina until the ship's next port of call in Mexico, where the survivors will embark flights home to Sweden.

AELA's intended voyage was from Nassau, Bahamas, to Bermuda, but bad weather forced the boat to attempt to sail to the Azores instead.

Last YTI Show

On May 11, 2017, Your Theatre, Inc. will open the final production of their 70th consecutive season with an eight show run of "What the Butler Saw" by Joe Orton.

Dr. Prentice, a psychiatric doctor in an exclusive, private clinic, is attempting to interview (and seduce) an attractive would-be secretary, Geraldine. Unwittingly surprised by his wife, he hides the girl. The affairs multiply as Mrs. Prentice, being seduced and blackmailed by young bellhop Nicholas Beckett, has promised him the secretarial post. When a government inspector arrives, chaos, underpants and cross-dressing lead the charge. The final tableau reveals "the missing parts of Winston Churchill" held aloft as the curtain falls. The New York production won the Obie Award as Best Foreign Play of The Season.

Your Theatre, Inc. is grateful to our 70th Season Sponsor, Bank 5, for their fifth year of strong support for the arts and to Bristol County Savings Bank for sponsorship of this production.

Performances are May 11-13 and 18-20 at 8:00 p.m. and May 14 and 21 at 2:30 p.m.. in the wheelchair accessible Your Theatre, Inc. Playhouse, 136 Rivet St. (corner of County St.), New Bedford, at St. Martin's Episcopal Church Complex. Free off-street parking and entrance are on County St.

Tickets are $15 general admission, $12 for season subscribers and $13 for senior citizens, students and military personnel. For tickets and further information call YTI at 508-993-0772, or send an email to info@yourtheatre.org. The theatre's web site is www.yourtheatre.org

Blessing of bikes draws 412

By Beth David
Editor

More than 400 motorcycles joined the annual blessing of the bikes in Fairhaven on Sunday, 5/7, braving cold and windy weather at Fort Phoenix and the threat of rain. The weekend included just a few hours of respite from the wet weather, just enough time for the riders to gather at Fort Phoenix and participate in the ride.

From Ft. Phoenix riders went to St. Joseph's on Spring Street in Fairhaven for a blessing by Fr. Bob Charlton and

Fr. Stephen Banjare. Riders then went on a ride through back roads and returned to the Ice House in Fairhaven for food and entertainment by The Relics.

Before the ride took off from Ft. Phoenix, Chris Costa, David Norman and Eddie Roy said they were joining the ride and the blessing to, hopefully, have a safe year.

"Hopefully, it helps keep us vertical," said Mr. Norman.

Falynn Faria, tags along with her father. They rode down from Taunton and planned to go to Providence after.

"I just like riding," said Ms. Faria. She said she will definitely have a motorcycle of her own when she grows up, and plans on it being a "pink, sparkly bike."

She'll be wearing a pink leather jacket to match it, too.

According to organizers, 412 bikes participated in the run. Proceeds from the even support St. Joseph School in Fairhaven.

For more information, visit <http://www.saintjosephschool.org> or on Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/100springfairhaven/>

Cherry Blossom Festival highlights Japanese culture

By Beth David
Editor

The crazy wind pushed some activities up the street, but it didn't stop Fairhaven's Japanese Cherry Blossom Friendship Festival from happening on Sunday, 5/7. Sponsored by the Whitfield-Manjiro Friendship Society, the festival celebrates Fairhaven's unique relationship with Japan, especially one small fishing village.

In 1841 a 14-year-old boy was stranded on a desert island with four shipmates. Six months later, Capt. John Whitfield of Fairhaven rescued Manjiro and his companions. The youngster returned to Fairhaven with Capt. Whitfield and became the first Japanese person to live in the Untied States. Japan was a closed society at the time and Manjiro became instrumental in opening Japan to the West, even earning himself a last name and becoming Manjiro

Nakahama.

On Sunday, Japanese Consul-General Rouchiro Michii joined members of the WMFS and the public for a traditional Bento picnic box lunch, Japanese drumming and martial arts demonstrations, paper theater (the Manjiro story), origami and names written in Japanese.

A chorus also led the crowd in song in front of the WMFS house on Cherry Street, which is where Manjiro lived while he was in Fairhaven. The Colonial Club's Coggeshall Memorial house across the street was also open for tours.

The martial arts and drumming demonstrations were held at Cooke Park, despite the cool weather and high winds. Organizers said the other events had to be moved because the wind kept knocking down the tents.

The park is home to six cherry trees that were a gift from Tosashimizu, Manjiro's home village and Fairhaven's sister city.

Colonial Club losing home, will auction off collection

By Beth David
Editor

One of Fairhaven's oldest clubs is losing its longtime home. The Fairhaven Colonial Club, established in 1912, is losing the house at 6 Cherry Street which was left in trust to the club at the death of Martha Coggeshall in 1916.

The trust is administered by Bank of America, which sent a letter to the club informing them of the decision to sell and telling them to vacate the premises.

Details are sketchy on how the bank is authorized to sell the house without the Colonial Club's input.

The club's president, Cindy LeBlanc, was not available for comment and other club members would not comment for the record.

The club's ownership of the contents of the building, including its impressive collection of Fairhaven historical artifacts and paintings, is not in dispute. The club is, however, selling off that collection. An auction is scheduled for June 10 at Marion Antiques, 164 Front Street, Marion.

Acushnet picks Gomes over Francis for moderator position

By Beth David
Editor

The Acushnet Selectboard chose Nicholas Gomes over former town moderator Robert Francis to be moderator from now until voters vote again in April of 2018.

At their meeting on Tuesday, 5/9, board members heard from both interested parties, then voted to choose Mr. Francis. At first the vote was 2-1, with board member Roger Cabral voting to support Mr. Gomes. But Mr. Cabral asked to change his vote to make it unanimous, saying he supported Mr. Gomes.

The situation arose because no one was on the April 3 ballot. The two men ran as write-in candidate and received 32 votes each, requiring the Selectboard to make an appointment.

Mr. Francis had said previously that he would step down after 36 years as moderator, but never really gave a reason.

At Monday's meeting, however, Mr. Francis told the board that he had gotten some dire medical news in the fall.

"They said I was going to die," said

Mr. Francis.

But then, after some treatment and new medication in January, he said his health has improved.

"I actually feel better than I before," he said.

He was still vague on exactly what his medical condition is.

"You know I love the job," said Mr. Francis.

Lifetime Acushnet resident Nicholas Gomes, who was formerly on the Housing Authority, but stepped down as part of lawsuit settlement involving James Madruga, told the board that he was new to politics.

An attorney, he said, and also wrote in his letter of interest, that his legal background would make him an ideal candidate for the position.

He also said, and wrote, however, that he held Mr. Francis in "high regard," and remembers Mr. Francis running the meetings when Mr. Gomes was a teenager.

He said he wanted to be involved in politics to make Acushnet a better place to live. He promised to find another way to get involved if not appointed.

Mr. Cabral was the first to speak and said that if Mr. Francis wanted the job he felt that he should be allowed to continue as moderator. He cited Mr. Francis's history in the job.

When Mr. Cabral made a motion to appoint Mr. Francis, no one seconded it.

Board member Michael Cioper spoke words of support for both men, but made a motion to appoint Mr. Gomes. Chairperson Kevin Gaspar seconded the motion.

Mr. Gaspar wished Mr. Francis the best of luck, but said it was time for a "new generation."

He said he hoped that Mr. Gomes's appointment and visibility in the job would inspire young people to get involved in town politics.

At Mr. Cabral noted that he did not have an express objection to Mr. Gomes and asked to amend his vote to make the support unanimous.

In another matter, the board delayed a vote on granting an easement for a property on Perry Hill Road, near the corner of Mendall.

The property has a failing well, but there is a five-year moratorium on digging up a newly surfaced road, so the owners cannot get to town water on Perry Hill Road. They want to hook up on Mendall, but it requires crossing a piece of town owned land. The owners asked for a permanent easement, but the board was not supportive of that.

Board members agreed that maybe a temporary easement would work better, then when the five years is up, they owners can hook up on Perry Hill Road.

Mr. Gaspar, however, also questioned why the town even owns that property and said he had repeatedly asked for more information on how many parcels the town owns and why.

"Water is something no one should be deprived of," said Mr. Gaspar, but also cited possible legal repercussions in the future with a permanent easement, or maybe even a temporary one.

The owners would be forced to do the hook-up twice if it is temporary.

In the course of the discussion about possibly selling the land in the future, Town Administrator Brian Noble said he got a text from Dan Menard, Highway Department Superintendent, who said the town's radio towers are on that land.

The board and Mr. Noble agreed that the land is unlikely to be sold.

The board voted to support the temporary easement if town counsel agrees it is something the town can legally do.

Mr. Cioper noted that unless it is an emergency, the town cannot tear up the road. He questioned if the owners knew they had trouble with the well before Perry Hill was paved.

"Everyone has trouble with wells," said Mr. Cabral.

Board members worried about setting a bad precedent.

The board also discussed the ownership of the parcel itself, with Mr. Noble saying he was unable to find the deed.

"I don't know when the town [acquired] this property," said Mr. Noble.

Mr. Gaspar then turned the discussion to all the other parcels the town owns and said he would like a list of where they are, when the town got them and why they did. He said the board should consider maybe selling some of them.

Mr. Noble noted that many of them are very small. Mr. Gaspar said that abutters might be interested in buying them.

The board voted to have Mr. Noble research the town owned properties.

The board also got an update from Tom Decosta on the progress of the Veterans Memorial that will be built at Pope Park. He said that progress has been steady and the project will go forward with no town funds being used, although they are still fundraising.

"It's [going to] happen, it is happening," said Mr. Decosta.

He said he is proud of what his group did and what the town did.

He said the park is "really like the center of town," because everyone goes there at some point.

"One way or another, if I have to go out myself with a shovel and start, I will," said Mr. Decosta.

Car crashes into 7-11 in Fairhaven

By Beth David
Editor

An 84-year-old woman apparently hit the gas instead of the brake, catapulting her car through the wall of the 7-11 in Fairhaven on Wednesday, 5/10. Police and paramedics responded at around 9:30 a.m. to find the car completely inside the building and products strewn about inside.

The area of the store that was hit included motor oil and other auto products that spilled out causing a treacherous and slippery mess, said Fairhaven police spokesperson Sgt. Kevin Kobza.

He said the woman was “really shaken,” but appeared to have no serious injuries. She was the sole occupant of the gray 2003 Toyota Camry.

“I think she thought she was stepping on the brake, but she hit the accelerator,” said Sgt. Kobza. “She appeared to be fine medically.”

He said there was no indication that she had a medical episode or that it was a case of distracted driving.

Witnesses told police that just before the crash, three people were standing where the car had crashed through.

“So, it could’ve been a lot worse than it was,” said Sgt. Kobza.

A press release from the Fairhaven

Fire Department stated that the driver and the store clerk were both evaluated by paramedics and taken to St. Luke’s for minor injuries. No other injuries were reported.

The Fairhaven Board of Health required that the store be closed until affected food is removed and the store is cleaned.

Hoppy's Landing getting spruced up for summer

By Beth David
Editor

Hoppy's Landing in Fairhaven is getting spruced up for the warm weather. The Harbormaster's department, Marine Resources Committee and the Board of Public Works have teamed up to make some changes that will make the idyllic spot a little more welcoming to families of all ages. After securing the permission from the Conservation Commission, crews removed some longstanding debris and a lot of invasive vegetation that was blocking the view.

The Harbormaster's office and BPW also installed large posts that will be connected with rope in nautical style. And on Tuesday, seven picnic tables got delivered so the public will be able to sit and watch the activity at the boat ramp, which is used by a variety of commercial and recreational boats of all sizes.

The picnic tables were built by and donated free of charge by Greater New Bedford Regional Vocational-Technical High School students as part of a community service project. The project will also include park benches and a shade area.

Fairhaven Harbormaster Tim Cox said his daughter Tara Cox and her friend Lexi Lees spearheaded the project as part of a statewide Skills

USA competition, and took third place.

Picnic tables were also donated to New Bedford at Fort Taber/Fort Rodman, and in Dartmouth at the YMCA.

Mr. Cox said the students secured a $25,000 grant from Lowe's for the project, and Big Wheels donated delivery service.

The area at Hoppy's where the picnic tables are will be seeded with native grasses.

Hoppy's Landing is located at 69 Goulart Memorial Drive, just before the causeway to West Island. For more information, visit <http://fairhaventours.com/hoppys-landing/> or <http://www.savebuzzardsbay.org/places-to-go/hoppys-landing/>

And while we were there

When you're hanging out at the boat ramp, you'll see all sorts of stuff, not just what you're there for. While we waited for the picnic tables on Tuesday, 5/9, we spotted a few other people, like Captain Bobby "Sacky" Sakwa and Captain Ray Cote. Capt. Sakwa returned from a morning out lobstering, while Capt. Cote headed out, just around the same time. LEFT: Matthew Loo holds up a bag of oysters he harvested from his oyster farm on Tuesday, 5/9. complaint/wheelchair accessible.

He noted that the building only has one entrance, which is dangerous. The only way out besides the front door, is to climb the stairs and then use the fire escape. But the stairs are right near the front door anyway.

The building has a town office in it now, the visitors center, and should be wheelchair accessible.

"The building deserves to be [ADA] compliant," said Mr. Despres.

Everyone, he said, whether in a wheelchair or not, has a right to be able to access the building.

Ann Ponichtera DeNardis noted that when the visitors center was moved to the building, supporters said it would save the town money. Now it was costing money, she said, because the office of tourism/visitors center was moved there. She asked if there was a cheaper way to make the building compliant.

The measure passed.

TM also voted to appropriated $50,000 in CPC funds to the Stratford Capital Group for the Oxford School Residences, despite some opposition.

Ann Richard opposed the measure, noting that SCG first wanted $350,000 in CPC funds, which is the amount they agreed to pay for the building.

"I feel we should not give this multi-million dollar company any more money," said Ms. Richard.

Town Administrator Mark Rees explained that the project will be financed mainly by tax credits and the funding authorities like to see community support for projects. He said the money will not be allocated until all other financing is in place.

"So, a private company is asking for CPC funds so they can carry on their business which in part will be giving residences to our elderly citizens," asked Ann Ponichtera DeNardis.

Mr. Rees said that Fairhaven residents and veterans will have priority for the income-based apartments.

"This private company is getting CPC funds to make a profit, which in part will provide residences to elderly individuals," said Daniel DeNardis. "They're not doing it for free."

"These buildings have been sitting around a long time," said a TM member. "We can't keep them forever. We have to move forward. If that's what it's going to take to move forward, then we have to vote for it."

In the end the measure passed.

The article to create School Regionalization Study Committee also generated some discussion. The article appropriating money for the study was passed over because the school department received a grant for the study itself.

"This is not about regionalization," said superintendent of schools Robert Baldwin. "This is about a...study to look into it."

He said for every two Fairhaven residents in the high school, there is one Acushnet resident. He said sports programs between the two towns are already integrated.

"Why wouldn't you look into it," he asked.

"This is strictly to create a committee to study it," said Pam Kuechler, chairperson of the school committee, adding that no decisions have been made about regionalization.

"We're not going to supply Acushnet a high school," said Mr. Benac.

"We are Acushnet's high school," said School Committee member Brian Monroe, noting that 236 Acushnet residents already attend Fairhaven High School.

The article passed.

The town meeting warrant, with operating budget expenditures and revenue, and all 58 articles, is on the town's website at www.fairhavenma.gov, under news and events "essential documents for Town Meeting members."

The FY18 operating budget, totalling $45.9 million includes $21.7 for the school department, about 47%. The money comes from a variety of sources, with $27.5 million coming from property taxes and $10.1 million in state aid.
