End of an era: Jackson's Variety building sold

First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Judge Murray Gurfein, Pentagon Papers case, June 17, 1971:

"The security of the Nation is not at the ramparts alone. Security also lies in the value of our free institutions. A cantankerous press, an obstinate press, a ubiquitous press must be suffered by those in authority in order to preserve the even greater values of freedom of expression and the right of the people to know."

From The Editor

WEST ISLAND —
A day late and many dollars short.

Beth David, Publisher

Well, it truly is the end of an era. Jackson's Variety, which operated for 50 years, and was Buster's before that, is gone from the Fairhaven landscape. The building had a devastating fire last year, and the building requires extensive rehabilitation to be usable again. The family decided that they were all close enough to retirement that they didn't want to take on the task. They sold the building and took down the iconic sign (see page 12).

They said the new owner will keep the building and rehab it, not knock it down. That's good. It's a bit of a different-looking building. It has character. I hope they are able to save it.

I don't remember Jackson's, exactly, as a kid. But I do remember penny candy stores and the people who worked in them. They had a lot of patience for little kids trying to maximize the use of their change.

Good luck to the new owners. We look forward to seeing some activity back in that building, even though we're pretty sure it won't be a penny candy place.

We have some meeting coverage for you this week. Selectboard is on page 4 (can you say "loooooong?"). Zoning Board of Appeals is on page 18. Both meetings held discussions on the changes to the design of the Oxford School project. It seemed like a sudden change in the final weeks before they are breaking ground, but, apparently, the ZBA voted on it a couple of years ago.

The Selectboard is supposed to hold a special meeting to discuss the new Rogers School proposal (see last week's issue). They didn't set an exact date, but they indicated they wanted it early next week, so we might not be able to list it for you. So, if you want to hear that, you'll have to call 'em up or visit the town's calendar on the website to join in. In any case, we'll be covering it (hopefully). We do miss meetings, I'm sorry to say. We can only do so much with our limited resources.

So, please feel free to donate to help keep us afloat. If you have a business, please consider advertising with us. And, whether you are able to do those things or not, please note who our advertisers are and tell them you saw their ads in the Neighb News.

Until next week then...see ya

CORRECTIONS/CLARIFICATIONS

In our story last week on the proposed development for the Rogers School, we misattributed a quote to Doug Brady. The quote, "Through negotiations, I think this project will do very well in the future," was made by an unidentified person. We apologize for any confusion our error may have caused.

COVID-19 update: Restrictions easing

By Beth David
Editor

Massachusetts governor Charlie Baker has eased up on some restrictions for businesses this week, citing a downward trend in new cases of COVID-19. Businesses that were limited to 25% capacity, are now able to operate at 40% capacity, including restaurants and close contact personal services. Businesses that can now operate at 40% include arcades and recreational businesses, driving and flight schools, gyms/health clubs, libraries, museums, retail stores, offices, places of worship, movie theaters (50 person maximum per theater). The new rules became effective on of 2/8/21.

Visit <https://www.mass.gov/> for details on specific businesses and limits.

Call Center for Vaccine Appointments for 75+

The state also launched a vaccine scheduling resource line to help residents 75 and older schedule an appointment. Previously, the only way to schedule an appointment was online, which was difficult for older residents, who often do not have access to the internet or are not proficient enough to navigate the system.

The line can be accessed by dialing 211 and selecting the prompt for "help scheduling a vaccine appointment." The line is open 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The center is staffed with more than 500 representatives who can provide life phone support to assist

Selectboard gets 3 TA finalists; Oxford roof change is done deal

By Jean Perry

Neighb News Correspondent

Fairhaven received the names of its three finalists for the town administrator position during the Fairhaven Selectboard meeting on 2/8, and board members tentatively scheduled a meeting for Tuesday, 2/16, to hold final interviews in open session.

The Town's hiring consultant, Community Paradigm Associates President Bernie Lynch, announced the three finalists: Jennifer Callahan, Thomas Hutka, and Ari Sky.

Ms. Callahan has been the town administrator for the Town of Oxford since mid-2018 after serving as TA in Millville the two years prior. She has a Doctorate, a Masters in Public Health, and has held a variety of elected and appointed positions

Mr. Hutka is an engineer with a Masters of Public Administration. He served as the director of Public Works for Broward County, Florida, and has held a variety of municipal positions around the country.

Ari Sky has been the chief financial officer for the City of New Bedford since 2013 and holds a Masters in Public Education. He has held a variety of positions in municipal government, and has served on a number of municipal committees and associations.

The TA Screening Committee received 39 applications.

"I think you have three outstanding candidates," said Mr. Lynch. "[The committee] put them through the wringer, if you will, with their questions. The Town of Fairhaven would be well served by any of these people."

The three finalists will be interviewed via Zoom, and the board may have Fairhaven Government Access delay the broadcast of the interviews to prevent candidates from having access to other candidates' interviews. Mr. Lynch suggested invoking the "honor system" by requesting they refrain from joining the Zoom meeting outside their scheduled interview time.

"I think it's just fair for everyone that way," said Mr. Lynch.

Each candidate will be given an hour for their interview.

Also during the meeting, Town Counsel Thomas Crotty informed the board that Stratford Group's changes to the roofline and reduction in the number of units for the proposed Oxford School housing development project had already been vetted by the Zoning Board of Appeals and approved.

Selectboard Chairperson Daniel Freitas asked whether the board had any right to say or do something, and Mr. Crotty eventually replied, "Whether you like it or not, this is the design."

According to Mr. Crotty, it was the Massachusetts Historical Commission's (MHC) decision to lower the roof height and restrict it to a flat roof so the new construction would not impede the view of the old school building.

"They wanted it to be like the old 1950s addition," said Mr. Crotty, "So, we're kind of stuck with that."

He said when the ZBA approved the changes back in 2018, it decided the changes were not substantial in nature, and the developer's letter and associated materials that referenced the roofline change was attached to the ZBA's decision.

Mr. Crotty said the process was

It's basically a done deal;
the [ZBA] has approved
these changes
[Town Counsel Tom Crotty]

likely affected by "a little bit of miscommunication" during personnel changes in the Building Department and perhaps "lost track of what was going on with the design. But, in fact, these have already been approved. There's actually nowhere we can go with this.... Short of going to court and fighting that, you're really not going to go anywhere."

Selectboard member Keith Silvia argued that any discussion of the roofline never came up when the ZBA approved the changes. He then pointed out that Selectboard member Bob Espindola was the chairperson of the board back then and referenced several email communications about the proposed changes that Mr. Espindola had been sent.

Mr. Espindola recalled giving the "preliminary go-ahead so [Stratford] could keep spending money," and said there was a team effort throughout negotiations that included former Town Administrator Mark Rees, former Building Commissioner Wayne Fostin, and Mr. Crotty.

"But in no case," said Mr. Espindola, "can any one selectman make a decision."

"But you knew about it," Mr. Silvia contended.

"[Mr. Rees] took the ball," he said, and then the matter came before the Selectboard — while Mr. Freitas was also a member, Mr. Silvia pointed out. He added that an unidentified ZBA member told him that the ZBA did not review any design changes to the roof when they were approved.

Resident Ann Richard did not accept the explanation and concurred that her review of ZBA documentation revealed no discussion of the roof design.

"And they did not hear this. If they saw it on a plan, nobody questioned it," she said.

She wondered if ZBA members are "appointed for life" and continued, "How do you get on the ZBA and not get off the ZBA and not read what you're voting on?"

She suggested the town withhold the $200,000 in Community Preservation Act funds that Town Meeting approved based on the prior design. She also suggested that Mr. Freitas did not respond to her email asking about the design change; he said he never received the email.

Community Preservation Committee Chairperson Jeff Lucas said his biggest concern was that "this whole thing was done under 'other business' in a public meeting for the ZBA.... That should have been posted as an item on the ZBA agenda."

He called it "underhanded to sneak it through under other business" and added, "I don't know what to make of it. I can't believe that the [MHC] is preferring a flat roof to a peaked roof."

Mr. Crotty said that the ZBA's written decision could have been "more comprehensive" with each change voted on individually.

"But the bottom line is the vote referenced the letter and incorporates the letter," said Mr. Crotty. "Could it be better worded? Yes, but does it cover the bases and incorporate the changes? It's basically a done deal; the [ZBA] has approved these changes."

Mr. Freitas pointed out that when the project was first proposed, some

Acushnet schools make good use of recess

The Acushnet Public Schools Kindergarten students made good use of their recess during last week's storm. "Thank you to Mrs. Silva for sharing these adorable pictures with us!" wrote the Acushnet Public Schools on its Facebook Page on February 4. "Kindergarten Room 1 used their recess time last week collaborating on building a snowman in front of the school for all to see, hoping to bring a smile or laugh to everyone who enters the school. Even our remote student joined in the fun and built one at home to share with us." ## Chamber Music “From Russia With Love,” Release Date: February 13, 4 p.m. What better way to celebrate winter than a troika of Russian beauties? Shostakovich hits a playfully tart bull’s-eye with his first String Quartet (1938), composed after the huge success of his Fifth Symphony reinstated the composer in official favor. Rachmaninoff’s beloved Vocalise, arranged for viola and piano, weaves its melancholy magic, after which the C Minor Piano Trio by Rimsky-Korsakov brings our Russian ride to a fittingly colorful end.

Thank God, I didn't win. Can you imagine the reaction at the dog park? It would take me years to live it down. The rest of the year, it's bandannas and bows. Lassie and Rin-Tin-Tin were revered dogs, they didn't wear clothes. So why me I ask?

I'm with you 100 per cent Camilla. I think dressing up a dog is demeaning and disrespectful. Remember in my earlier column I told you that humans think they are our parents and parenting is the most competitive sport in America? So, they dress you up and show you off, like you were their child. Actually, your mom means well. It's her way of expressing love. Yeah, I know a cookie would be a better; but try telling her that.

Whatever her reason, don't put up with it. When you see her approaching, run away, hide under the bed. If she does catch you, squirm and make it hard for her to get you dressed. As a last resort, and I'm not saying you should do this, but a dog friend told me that every time her Mom dressed her up, she immediately — right in her front of her Mom — peed on the rug. After countless carpet-cleaning bills, the Mom put two and two together and threw all her dog clothes away. Sometimes Camilla you just have to resort to extreme measures.

Dispatches

News from high school in the age of COVID

By Elizabeth DaCunha

Special to the Neigh News

Snow days.

It's a controversial topic. You either love 'em or hate 'em, but that depends on whether you care about a few less days of summer.

Unfortunately, snow days aren't up for debate any longer. Now that we are so familiar with using technology to learn, schools including FHS have decided to make remote learning available on snow days.

The Superintendent of the district decides the night before, leaving teachers and students enough time to prepare for the remote day ahead. It's organized to include all academic classes and electives just as a regular in-person day would look like, but rather teaching over Google Meets than in front of the board.

Just like all the other changes forced by COVID, students and faculty have had to adapt, but it doesn't necessarily mean that everyone is fond of these new adjustments.

So, I have discussed the topic with several Fairhaven High students to see what their thoughts are on getting rid of snow days.

Baile Fitzgerald said, "I think having Google Meets on snow days is a smart idea. I would prefer to do this because it gives us more days in the summer, and we can learn from home while still having our attendance count."

Natalie Yochim also commented that she liked learning on a snow day because, "I think it's helpful to actually be able to talk with our teachers, even though some things were a bit harder to learn remotely, but overall I didn't mind the snow day at all!"

Sam Hubert stated his opinion as well: "I like what we're currently doing with the snow days because then we get to be home and don't add any extra days to the end of the year."

Many kids felt similarly to Fitzgerald, Yochim, and Hubert including myself. I personally like that the weather now does not interfere with our learning. We're already home so much as it is, being remote half of the time, and vacations on top of that, so learning virtually gives us the opportunity to continue learning without any more interruptions.

Although I like being able to keep my extra days of summer, I do appreciate the traditional snow day, being able to sleep in and play in the snow all day long.

Thomas Marcotte said he doesn't mind having to learn on snow days, but, "would prefer having regular snow days where we make it up at the end of the year because snow days are fun."

Freshman Sophia Fleurent also felt the same as Marcotte saying, "I would rather make the day up at the end of the year because that's how we've always done it."

Change is hard, and a learning curve comes with modified, virtual education. Fleurent proved this by stating, "It's hard to pay attention and most people procrastinate the work given on these days."

Not only that, but also technical difficulties are a pretty common problem throughout remote learning whether it's setting up these virtual meetings, sound issues, weak internet, you name it.

Even from my own experience this past week having my first remote snow day, some classes started late because of problems with network connectivity, and several students could not hear or see the teacher.

These are the problems that make students miss regular classes and long-established snow days.

It's odd to think that snow days are perhaps a thing of the past now that we are able to interact with our teachers and classmates through online conferencing.

What are your thoughts on re-vamping snow days into virtual classes?

While you ponder that, make sure to go check out my past articles and stay tuned for more!

As always, stay positive and test negative!

Jackson's sold, iconic sign taken off building

By Beth David
Editor

A little variety store has been in that spot for 70+ years, but last year, on 2/3/20, Jackson's Variety, which had occupied the space for more than 50 years, suffered a devastating fire.

The damage meant tens of thousands of dollars in renovations. The Jackson family decided it was time to sell. This weekend on 2/6/21, almost exactly one year later, the iconic sign came down, a few days after the building changed hands.

Colleen Jackson said the family decided to sell instead of rebuild. Her sister Tina worked in the store, their father Colin "Jack" Jackson was upstairs asleep when the blaze started, and narrowly escaped, with the help of Tina and her niece, and a few passersby. It was a harrowing ordeal (see 2/6/20 issue online), but everyone got out.

The building, however, was heavily damaged.

Colleen said an Acushnet business owner bought the building and will probably keep the apartment upstairs and run a business below.

It most likely, however, will not be a variety store.

She said he plans to rehab the building not knock it down.

Family members, she said, were close to retirement, and decided that selling the building was their best option. They signed on 2/3/21, one year to the day of the fire, and closed on the fourth.

She said she wanted to keep the sign "as a memory."

It will probably get a special place in her yard.

"It's just sad," said Colleen, adding that she and Tina walked through before the sale.

The damage was extensive, and seemingly complete, although the

The bedroom was destroyed, she said. But as they looked around, they saw a Mother's Day card for her mother (who was in the hospital at the time of the fire), that was perfectly intact.

Many youngsters from decades, generations, ago remember going to the little store for penny candy, soda, or other treats after school, or running up from the beach, and then back down again.

"The property is sold & we wish the new owners the best," wrote Colleen on her Facebook page. "We want to thank everyone for their support throughout this whole ordeal!"

"Sad day..but the wonderful memories will last all a lifetime!! Thank God for good people like the Jackson family. Jack always took care of those in need. And trust me their were always tons of people in need. He helped so many people without money to keep milk, bread and staples on the table for their families. He took good care of [a lot of] Neckers and has a heart of gold," wrote Kathy Fitzgerald Candage. "Sending [love] to Jack and the Jackson family."

"My kids used to Love going there for candy! wrote Lynne Manly. "Your Dad was always so nice!"

"So many memories from that store!" wrote Tracey Stuart Dennison. "I used to take the bus from there and I bought so many treats."

Elizabeth Palm wrote that she visited the store in 2017 and saw Jack there and he told her to not to forget to stop by "in another 20 years."

"I said, 'No, not twenty but thirty, and you better be here,'" she wrote, adding she wasn't sure of her response, but was sure of his remark. "Anyway, take care and wishing you and the rest of your family all the best in the coming year and all the ones afterwards."

"Lots of memories it was always nice talking with him or seeing your sister when I used to go in," wrote Louise Quinting. "It will never be the same."

residents called for fewer units, a smaller footprint, and less parking with a preference to keep the old school as the focal point of the site.

"I'm not seeing a huge problem with this; I really don't," said Mr. Freitas.

Mr. Espindola pointed out that the MCH "basically determines if you're going to get any grant money.

"Essentially, these changes, had they not been made [Stratford], would not have a project," said Mr. Espindola.

He said most people would prefer the hipped gable roof, including Stratford.

After pressure from Ms. Richard to have a representative from Stratford address the meeting, Stratford's attorney, Kurt James, joined via Zoom. He explained how the MCH demanded the changes.

When Mr. Freitas asked him what would happen if the Selectboard decided to "not go forward" with the changes, Mr. James asked, "The selectmen are considering this with what hat on?"

He said the building commissioner issues the building permits, not the selectboard.

Mr. Crotty concurred, saying, "The selectmen actually have no direct say in whether a building permit is issued or not," and the Selectboard does not have the authority to tell the building commissioner not to issue permits.

The board could decide not to sell the property in the end, but that would be a "whole different issue."

Mr. Freitas said he was "even more behind" the project that night than ever before because the developer "actually worked out some of the details" that vexed residents early on.

No action was taken, but Mr. Freitas invited Ms. Richard to resend her email with questions and perhaps continue the conversation at a later time.

The discussion with Arch Communities and Lanagan & Co. was tabled that night so that the board could hold a public meeting just for the Rogers School housing development RFP so the public could participate and ask questions.

The board also met with A-1 Crane owner Patrick Carr over his cease and desist order conundrum, but to Mr. Freitas's frustration, they were unable to conclude the matter amenably.

Building Commissioner Chris Carmichael said he met with Fire Chief Todd Correia, Conservation

Agent Whitney McClees, Police Chief Michael Myers, Mr. Foley, and Mr. Crotty to come up with five bullet points of compliance for Mr. Carr, who has been defending his right to use his property on Middle Street as an Industrial zone business (grandfathered) within a Mixed-Use zone.

Mr. Carr argued that the zoning was changed through a Town Meeting vote, and business owners of the affected zone were never properly informed, and that he is unfairly made to abide by the five "stipulations."

Mr. Crotty said that Mr. Carr's property was grandfathered for industrial use, but neither the ZBA nor the Selectboard has authority over the existing cease and desist order.

"The building commissioner is the zoning officer. [Ms. McClees] is the wetlands statute and bylaw enforcing agency. The Fire Department is the fuel storage enforcing agency," said

If you guys don't want to be in the same room, then find another job
[Daniel Freitas]

Mr. Crotty. "Those departments are not governed in terms of enforcing the laws by somebody coming into the [Selectboard's] ... meeting and complaining, 'I don't like what your department heads are doing ... so I want you to tell them to not do their job.' They're doing their job; they're enforcing the bylaws [and] the state regulations. With all due respect, you don't resolve all these issues at a [Selectboard's] meeting."

Mr. Carr began yelling in protest until Mr. Carmichael asked to interject. He said he entered into the middle of the situation three months ago.

In this case, he said, "No one wins, and no one loses in this situation, but we have to find common ground.... We're attempting to find common ground where all the departments have their items addressed.... Again, we've come up with these points; we'd like Mr. Carr to agree with them... We are attempting to move forward as quickly as we possibly can on this."

"This needs to be handled and done — finished," said Mr. Freitas, often speaking in incomplete sentences. "And he needs to know which permit he's running under...."

Raising his voice, Mr. Freitas demanded Mr. Carr and the department heads meet within a week.

"If you guys don't want to be in the same room, then find another job.... It costs the Town a fortune every time [Mr. Crotty] has to write something down, and I'm tired of this. I'm tired of constantly hearing about this.... It's over now; it's enough!"

Mr. Carr continued defending himself, alleging that very few neighbors had been involved—mainly one that had been attacking him unfairly, and maligning his character online.

Mr. Foley asked to speak and said, "Several neighbors [come into my office] once a week. So, yes, there are other neighbors complaining."

Mr. Carr's property was grandfathered when the zoning changed, agreed Mr. Foley, but he added, "The problem is, when you want to expand, you need approval. The Planning Board is where they should be getting a special permit to see if it would allow them to expand."

"If I choose to expand, I understand that I have to come through you," said Mr. Carr. "And we haven't expanded one iota."

The board voted to allow Mr. Carr to meet once more with department heads and parties involved.

The board convened in executive session to discuss realty matters concerning Union Wharf and for strategy of litigation involving West Island Realty and Casey Boat Realty.

The board did not hold its executive session item to conduct contract negotiations because, as Mr. Espindola pointed out, the agenda failed to list the employees' positions and names involved. Mr. Freitas responded to Mr. Espindola's inquiry about the parties involved and revealed that it was for Finance Director Wendy Graves and Town Accountant Anne Carreiro. Mr. Crotty advised Mr. Freitas not to hold the executive session without properly posting the item.

Neither Ms. Graves nor Ms. Carreiro is currently working under a contract, they are both part of the wage classification plan, as are most town employees.

Fairhaven ZBA approved Oxford building changes 2 years ago

Jean Perry

Neighb News Correspondent

The Fairhaven Zoning Board of Appeals on 2/2 could not shed light on the Stratford Group's proposed reduction in units or the altered roofline design for the Oxford School development, even after Building Commissioner Chris Carmichael confirmed that the ZBA did vote to approve the proposed changes two years ago.

Resident Ann Richard called into the meeting remotely via Zoom concerned about the changes, especially the roofline design that changed from a hipped dormer roof to a flat roof. She said she reviewed the ZBA meeting minutes and watched the recordings from 6/5/18, 1/9/19, and 3/4/20 when Oxford School was discussed and said, "There was no mention of a change in the roofline.... I feel like this is a substantial change, and it was never ... spoken about in ... open meeting, and it was never in the minutes."

ZBA Chairperson Peter DeTerra asked Mr. Carmichael to clarify Ms. Richard's account of the events

"I came on (as building commissioner) three months ago," said Mr. Carmichael. "As for what happened during your meeting two years ago, no, I really can't speak on it."

"So, maybe we should table this and get some more information on this and bring it back the next meeting?" said Mr. DeTerra.

Mr. Carmichael did say that retired Town Administrator Mark Rees presented the ZBA with the change to the units, "And that the roofline was in some fine print in the last change. I don't know if it was ever discussed or presented."

"So, they made it lower or higher?" asked Mr. DeTerra.

Mr. Carmichael briefly explained the change that Stratford considered a "minor change" but added, "They changed the roofline drastically to a flat roof."

Mr. DeTerra asked Ms. Richard what she was looking for, and she replied that she was concerned that no abutters were notified when the changes were made and added, "I don't feel like anyone on this committee has looked at the plan ... and that's very concerning to me.... I just feel like this is a significant change; it's not just one little thing...."

It's going to make a big change in the way the building looks."

She asked if anyone on the board had anything to say.

Mr. DeTerra said he would ask a representative from Stratford to attend the next meeting on 3/2. Mr. Carmichael noted that the contractor for Stratford was hoping to get the building permits issued immediately, so perhaps the ZBA could hold a meeting before 3/2.

"They're hoping to start construction very shortly ... so we may need to expedite this," said Mr. Carmichael.

A 4/13/18 letter released by the Selectboard's Office from SCG to the ZBA does reflect a reduction from 63 to 54 units and includes a statement reporting on the Massachusetts Historical Commission's (MHC) recommendation to simplify the building "to align more closely with the existing gymnasium structure in massing,

I just feel like this is a significant change; it's not just one little thing....It's going to make a big change in the way the building looks height, and materials..."

It also reads, "In lieu of the cross gabled 3 & 4-story that was presented ..., a simpler massing is presently defined with a lower flat roof that brings the height of the new roofline below that of the historic structure."

The revised plans were attached to that letter reflecting the proposed flat roof.

A letter from SCG to the ZBA dated 1/4/19 then requested a reduction in units from 63 to 52 and included the same intent to construct the new building with a flat roof.

In another matter, two abutters opposed to a special permit and variance to allow for a FEMA-compliant raised house at 15 James Street were unsuccessful in convincing the ZBA that their concerns were valid.

David Caruso, 17 James Street, was concerned that adding one foot of fill to raise the ground elevation from 7 to 8 feet would result in water runoff into his and other abutting properties in a neighborhood Mr. Caruso said is already a "wet area" with water drainage issues. He worried that rainwater would no longer flow toward the street but down toward his property and into his crawlspace cellar.

"I see you got underground storm-water retention things for the gutter drains?" Mr. DeTerra said to Rick Charon of Charon Associates, who concurred. Mr. Charon insisted that the runoff would flow toward the drainage system in the street, and the foot of fill would provide drainage around the new house "so it's not sitting in a hole."

Furthermore, Mr. Caruso said, once the older house is razed and the new one built up on stilts, the new 35-foot high home will block the sun to his residential solar panels, especially in the winter.

At first, Mr. Charon said the new house might cast a shadow on Mr. Caruso's solar panels, possibly in the early morning, but then realized, "Well, he (Mr. Caruso) is right, yeah."

Still, the bylaws would allow for a new house up to a maximum height of 35 feet, said Mr. Charon, adding, "I don't know what to do about shading effects. We haven't really studied that."

He argued that if the ZBA contemplates the project's effect on Mr. Caruso's solar panels.

"I just think it sets a dangerous precedent if people can set up solar collectors to prevent someone from making their house conform to federal requirements.... Can you imagine if it were possible for people to put collectors up knowing that, going forward, their neighbor couldn't do anything with their house?" said Mr. Charon. "I don't think there's a requirement that prevents us from building a house to flood zone requirements because we're shading someone's solar collectors."

Mr. Caruso said he installed his solar panels well before Kyle Costa, owner of 15 James Street, put forth any plans to rebuild.

"To relieve Mr. Costa's hardship ... you should put a hardship on me?" Mr. Caruso asked.

"In order to build a house, [Mr. Costa] must put it up in the air," said Mr. Charon.

From our readers

Dear North Fairhavenites

I feel like a victim of theft after reading an article in the 1/21/21 issue of the Standard-Times regarding our Paul Revere bell. Is it just me or do you feel the same?

From the time that the bell was removed from the Oxford School, I had the feeling that we in North Fairhaven would not be getting it back. And, sure enough! The article leaves no question that we are being robbed!

Why should our Paul Revere bell be located in the center of Fairhaven? Isn't it enough that they have all the beautiful buildings donated by Henry Huttleston Rogers? Can't we have the one thing that was ours for so many years — the Oxford School bell?

If you're an old North Fairhavenite like me, you remember it ringing at the start of school. You remember counting the number of rings that signaled the location of a fire in town. You looked up to the top of Oxford School and there was your bell.

Now the Bell Committee wants to locate it in the center of Fairhaven. Why? It means nothing to them. We have a gazebo sitting in the middle of Benoit Square. Place it there and make it damage and theft-proof.

If placing it in the center of town is just one more thing to entertain tourists, let them travel a mile or so up Main or Adams Street and they can view it at Benoit Square.

Mr. Baumgartner, of the Bell Committee, says it's wonderful to have so many people involved in the work and effort to place the bell next to the town hall keeping history alive. Placing it back in North Fairhaven would really be keeping history alive. And, by the way, who appointed the members of the Bell Committee? I was never contacted. Were you?

I hope that I'm not the only one who feels robbed. If you feel like I do, let your voice be heard. Get on Facebook or whatever everyone does nowadays and complain. Or, write a letter.

Dorothy Lemos, Fairhaven

Arthur Oliveira of 2 Harborview Avenue also spoke against the project because of possible water drainage issues.

"I'm concerned about raising the grade in a neighborhood that's probably a couple of hundred feet from the waterfront with the highest possible water table," he said. "James Street has no stormwater collection system at all.... I understand that the special permit being applied for is for an extension of a legally pre-existing non-conforming lot.... It's my understanding that you're not supposed to create your own hardships."

Mr. Oliveira said a recent rain and snow event left more water than usual near the site, and it takes "quite some time for the ground down here to absorb any type of rain, and I'm concerned about that."

Board members had no questions or comments before unanimously approving the special permit for "front, rear, and lot sizes," and a variance to allow a 10-foot front setback instead of the required 20 feet, and a 10-foot rear setback instead of the required 30.

In other matters, the board unanimously approved a special permit and variance for Doreen and Antonio Albuquerque, 18 Point Street, to raze an existing house and construct a FEMA-compliant home on stilts. Judith and Robert Tubbs, 294 Huttleston Avenue, received a six-month extension of a variance. # Collasius announces run for tree warden

Hello, my name is Don Collasius and I am running for the position of Fairhaven Tree Warden.

"A tree warden is a person in charge of shade trees on public town lands and has the unique legal responsibility: to guard public resources against destructive forces that might include persons, insects, or diseases," as defined by the Massachusetts Tree Warden and Foresters Association.

Since 1899, Massachusetts General Law has mandated that all cities and towns in the Commonwealth have a tree warden.

Some towns have elected Wardens, like Fairhaven, some towns have the Highway Supervisor as the de facto Warden.

As Tree Warden I will make customer service a top priority. I will institute a real town wide pruning and planting program that will make the streets and parks safer and more beautiful. I will make this information easily accessible so you can see progress, or lack thereof.

Accountability, communication, transparency and follow up will be my mantra. I will work towards merging the tree department with the BPW. This is how other towns our size do this and it makes good fiscal sense. I will apply for grants that will expand the budgetary capabilities of the department with no cost to the town. Technology will be part of the solutions we benefit from.

good branch collar is and why it's important during tree pruning.

I want this job because I care about this town and trees in general. Trees have so many benefits if planted and maintained properly. They add beauty, increase property values, and help the environment, if done right. If not maintained correctly they can have the opposite effect.

What I bring to the job is an excellent work ethic and communication skills. I have experience in tree work. I started cutting cord wood in my early teens. I harvested 100 storm downed trees and used them to build my house after hurricanes Bob and Gloria. I have owned and managed a tree lot in New Hampshire for 30 years. I have planted hundreds of conifers and dozens of deciduous trees.

I know what a good branch collar is and why it's important during tree pruning. Most importantly, I know when to call in experts for consultation.

I spent my career as a mechanical engineer. As a project manager I had to be a communication link between sales, marketing and engineering and senior management. I had to deal with budgets and project time constraints. I know how to fix and design things. Our tree department is broken. I can be a big part of fixing that.

Please give me a chance to make things better.

Thank you, Don C. Collasius, Candidate for Tree Warden
