WEST ISLAND —
A day late and many dollars short.

Well, the boil water order is still in effect (see page 5). A trace amount of bacteria, not even e. Coli, showed up in a couple of samples, so the state won't lift the order. Alas... continue to boil or buy. Hopefully it will be lifted in a day or two.

Our Halloween Trail has 12 stops this year (see page 12). There are others, of course. Plenty of people are out there decorating and plotting to scare you if you dare to get too close.

Many of these places are ready to go. I have no idea if I'll be able to get mine up and running. I put me on the list, but...the last few years have been tough. I'll do my best to at least be decorated for the big night.

There are other Halloween happenings in here, all over the place. Don't forget the the virtual Halloween Party at Fairhaven Town Hall on Friday (see page 3).

And, one of my very favorites: The NFIA Halloween Horribles Parade, on Friday (see page 3).

Fairhaven is also holding a hazardous waste day on Saturday, (see ad on page 6). It's your chance to get rid of all that old anti-freeze and oil and other junk that you know you shouldn't throw in the trash, but, don't know where to get rid of it either.

And, as much as we have a TON of Halloween stuff in here, we also managed to squeeze in some meeting coverage: See page 16 for Acushnet Selectboard, page 4 for Marine Resources Committee, and page 10 for Frankie. Oops...Frankie's not a town committee, but, hey...she's read more than most of those anyway.

I hope you will take some time to enjoy the season. Get out there and do some scaring or get scared or do both. I hope to see you on Sunday at the parade down Main Street.

Marine Res. debates land swap with Shipyard, use of Hoppy's

Jean Perry

Neighb News Correspondent

Despite an agenda packed with seemingly controversial issues, the Fairhaven Marine Resources Advisory Committee on 10/14/21 was proud of itself for "playing nice" as the members quarreled over some topics and then united with a consensus that the land swap with Fairhaven Shipyard and the continuance of parking meters at Hoppy's Landing might not be in the best interest of the town.

First up, James Malandrinos of Blue Stream Aquaculture asked the committee to consider a recommendation to the Select Board to allow the company to run a wire and feed off the electricity service at Hoppy's Landing while it seeks to establish its own service with Eversource. Mr. Malandrino said Blue Stream wants electricity service at its location to run a walk-in cooler but has had no progress in its pursuit of approval from Eversource.

Blue Stream proposes covering the cost of running the electrical from Hoppy's Landing to its nearby site and reimbursing the Town for the entire electric bill for Hoppy's Landing throughout the months that Blue Stream continues to tap into the building's electricity. After Eversource approves a separate connection for Blue Stream, Mr. Malandrino said his company would pay for the removal of the electrical tie-in and cover all the expenses of providing the needed 50 amps of power directly from Eversource.

Chairperson Michael McNamara said he was concerned about not having a timeline from Eversource for how long Blue Stream's connection could take, and Mr. Malandrino had little information to alleviate the chair's concerns.

"There's been very little interaction, and [Eversource] rejected the first three applications we made ... for what they considered incorrect data," said Mr. Malandrino, adding that in over six weeks he has not received any further feedback from Eversource and that the installation would be relatively difficult.

Nevertheless, blue Stream is hoping to have electricity come the next summer season.

Committee member Robert "Hoppy" Hobson thanked Mr. Malandrino for all the cleanup work Blue Stream has performed at its aquaculture site and wished them luck with the electricity. Although he supported allowing Blue Stream to tie into the electric at Hoppy's Landing, he suggested placing a time limit on how long they could do so.

Harbormaster Tim Cox recommended a six-month agreement with the option of the Select Board renewing the agreement every six months.

Mr. Malandrino said he was concerned about the time limit and said that although it sounded "fair and reasonable," he continued, "I know the headaches I've had with Eversource. We call them, we call them, we call them in our community buildings and we don't get any response."

He said his fear is that Blue Stream will invest the time and money and then end up without electricity.

After further discussion, the board, including Select Board representative Keith Silvia, voted to recommend that the Select Board offer Blue Stream a six-month agreement to tie in with the option to extend the agreement every six months.

Things heated up during a presentation from Northeast Maritime Institute's (NMI) David Clement proposing to turn the ground floor of the Hoppy's Landing building into a community center to promote public maritime education and research, and enhance community outreach.

Mr. Cox said when he first discussed the matter with NMI, "I started to panic there for a minute because I depend on that building for a lot of things, so me and Dave met down there and we discussed it and he wrote up a little proposal," Mr. Cox said.

He explained that no decision was needed that day, just a kickoff of the conversation.

"I thought about it and I think it's a great idea to utilize that building a little more," said Mr. Cox.

NMI's proposal specifies that any entity that wants to apply to host a maritime educational program at Hoppy's Landing would have to submit a proposal detailing how the community would benefit from the program, and the committee would get to approve or deny it. Some examples Mr. Clement listed included shellfish initiatives, public school field trips, coastal restoration projects, research, and public aquaculture workshops.

If appropriate, Mr. Clement also said NMI would be willing to provide the Town with a gray shipping container at the west side of the existing building for the Marine Resources department to store its equipment at the site.

Boil water order still in place for Fairhaven

The boil water order for Fairhaven is still in place after samples tested positive for trace amounts of coliform. The samples showed no signs of e. Coli, which triggered the order on 10/7. An update posted to the town's website on 10/19, said that that samples on 10/18 "revealed trace amounts of coliform at 2 locations out of the 16 collected samples throughout Town."

The state is requiring that the town of Fairhaven continue to keep the boil water order in place to give time for disinfection to occur.

Flushing, chlorinating and sample collection continue to occur.

The Town of Fairhaven will provide its next update on Thursday, October 21st, after the samples of October 20 are reported.

Visit the town's website at <https://www.fairhaven-ma.gov> for more information.

This much beloved story about the bonds and strength through good times and not so good, is set in Truvy's beauty salon in Chinquapin, LA where all the ladies who are "anybody" come to have their hair done. Helped by her eager new assistant, Annelle, the outspoken, wise-cracking Truvy dispenses shampoos and free advice to the town's rich curmudgeon, Ouiser, an eccentric millionaire, Miss Clairee, who has a raging sweet tooth; and the local social leader, M'Lynn, whose daughter, Shelby, is about to marry a "good ole boy." As the story proceeds through comedy and tragedy we learn how these women have been each other's strength through friendship and love.

All theater guests must be fully vaccinated. Visit <https://www.marionartcenter.org/events/steel-magnolias/> for entrance restrictions due to COVID-19. Ticket sales are limited to forty guests per show. Advanced purchase is strongly recommended. Visit marionartcenter.org, email

Recipe of the Week

Cajun Shrimp

Shrimp is full of flavor and cooks up in just 15 minutes! Serve with rice, vegetables, or over a bed of pasta for a delicious, quick meal.

- 1 lb large shrimp, peeled & deveined
- salt and pepper
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2-3 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons Cajun Seasoning
- 1 tablespoon minced garlic, or dried garlic
- 1 tsp crushed chili pepper flakes
- 1-inch piece of fresh ginger, grated

After peeling and deveining the shrimp, add them to a large mixing bowl, coat with olive oil, season with salt and pepper, then toss with cajun seasoning.

Melt butter in a large skillet over med. heat on stovetop. Add shrimp and season with garlic, ginger, and crushed chili pepper flakes. Cook until the shrimp turns pink and no gray remains. Add 2 tablespoons of water to help scrape the brown bits off the bottom of the skillet and coat the shrimp. Add more salt and pepper to taste. Serve immediately!

Dear Frankie

Do All TV's Report the Same News?

Dear Frankie, I asked the dogs at the park if their families were upset as mine about wearing masks, because of the recent spike in Covid cases.

Lily asked, "Where did they hear that?"

I said, "We heard the doctor from the government say it on the evening news."

She said, "That's weird. We watch the news every night and we never saw that doctor talking about wearing masks again."

I asked her, "What kind of TV do you have?"

She said, "We have a Samsung; How about you?"

I said, "We have a Sony."

We figured the reason we don't get the same news was we had different kinds of TVs. Are we right, Frankie?

Archie

Dear Archie,

I can understand why you might think that the brand of your TV might be the reason you don't get the same news. It's a good guess; however, that's not the reason why the program you and Lily's family watch doesn't report the same news.

There are many TV news programs. Any TV can tune into any of these programs. Not all these programs however view Covid or how humans should respond to the spike in COVID cases in the same way.

If you think about it, it's like the ads for dog food. Not all dog food companies view the nutritional needs of dogs in the same way or the kind of food that is healthiest for dogs.

Viewers like your parents and Lily's know there are different kinds of news programs and dog foods to choose from. Therefore, they buy the food and watch the programs they believe offers what is best for them.

Best, Frankie

YAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAH

Halloween is Sunday, 10/31

By Beth David
Editor

Welcome to our 16th annual Halloween Trail.

Most are drive/walk by or wander around this year. Manny, though, at Ole Oxford Haunt (#2) is still sending you through the gauntlet of horror, twisting around his yard, with who-knows-what jumping out to scare the bejeebers out of you. Don't be surprised, though, if a few others do the same...unannounced.

COVID precautions are not the same as last year. Here in Massachusetts most of us are vaccinated, so the precautions are lightened up a bit. We do have our share of anti-vaxxers, though. So, don't be shy about wearing a protective mask under your scary mask. And don't forget the hand sanitizer.

Acushnet is having its annual parade and the NFIA is having its Horribles Parade (yeah, they don't call it that anymore, but I do). Both were canceled last year due to COVID, so it's nice to see those back. See "Off the Trail but still worth the trip" on page 9.

Please be respectful when you visit and are wandering around the yards. These are people's private yards. Don't touch, try not to get too scared. Feel free to scream.

Many of those on the trail are ready for this weekend, but will have even more stuff out next weekend for the big night. Check out each listing to find out who is ready for you. I, for instance, will not even commit to being one day early. But I will try like crazy to have a respectable entrance to the cauldron for the big night.

No doubt there are other haunted houses that will welcome you on Halloween, but we generally only include the ones we know for sure want to be included on the trail. If you see decorations, it's a good bet they have candy and will welcome you and your little ones so they can scare the bejeebers out of you. So, don't be shy. If you see a lot of decorations, you know they that at the very least they want you to stop and gawk, so feel free to do so.

As always, we tried to make this a logical geographical trail. We begin in North Fairhaven and move south from there, but, of course, this is America, land of the free and home of the car lovers, so feel free to visit any which way you want to. Just...get there! Thanks to all who sent in yards and helped out with pictures.

Enjoy your tour of the real Halloweentown..... yahahahahahaha.

Oh...and Halloween is on a Sunday this year, but before Daylight Saving Time, which is the following weekend.

Also, be sure to visit Haunted Fairhaven's Facebook page at <https://www.facebook.com/hauntedfhvn>.

AND SO IT BEGINS...

1: 70 OLIVER STREET Back for the seventh year and ready this weekend for your viewing pleasure ("pleasure" being a relative term, of course). They are up and ready now, so feel free to go by anytime to look, but especially be prepared to be scared on Friday and Saturday this weekend and next (10/23, 24, 20, 31) from around 5:30-9. The yard is lit nightly, but the scary live actors will be there on the four nights only (hmmm...if you can trust them).

They will be selling merchandise and baked goods to raise money for Boston Children's Hospital. Find

"Yard of Terror/Haunts for Hope" on Facebook for links to donate. Submitted photos

2: 60 OXFORD STREET OLE OXFORD HAUNT, our own Manny Souza and family are at it again (still?). They will have the whole gauntlet (literally). Walk through at your peril, and be prepared for the screaming ghouls and noise implements of destruction. Or, if you prefer, just check it out from the street. We assure you: Lots of people do!

Starting this Friday, 10/22, and right through to 10/30, they will be open for from 6-9 p.m. On the Big Night, 10/31, They will be open from 5 until ??? Submitted photos.

Acushnet Selectboard discusses speeding options on Slocum St.

By Mary Chasse

Neighb News Correspondent

At its meeting on Tuesday 10/12 the Acushnet Selectboard discussed options for speed prevention on Slocum Street, and some fee changes for permits.

The board first appointed resident Eric James to the Beautification Committee. The board also appointed Thomas Whitehead to the Zoning Board and the Agricultural Commission as an alternate.

The board then met with Police Chief Chris Richmond about the updates on Slocum Street. Mr. Richmond said the speed on that street has always been an issue and they have been having police monitor the area. Chief Richmond said they have also added one speed sign for now while they wait for the new sign to come in from the supplier.

He said the new speed sign is still 3-4 weeks away from arrival but it is solar powered unlike the current sign. Although the current sign is old, it has been making people aware of their speed and has slowed down a lot of cars on the street, which is helping.

Chief Richmond also said he would also like to add permanent signs to the street.

The board voted unanimously to transfer funds for the signs.

Chairperson David Desroches told Chief Richmond that at the last Selectboard meeting a few residents brought up the possibility of adding a four way stop near Slocum Street and Nye Avenue.

Chief Richmond said he has done some research and the ability to put a stop sign there would be limited. He explained that it is prohibited to add a stop sign as a form of speed control. To get a stop sign, there would need to be a traffic and speed study. He said the speed on the street is currently only 25 mph and he is worried that if a speed study is done the state may increase the speed limit.

Chief Richmond explained that it is prohibited to add a stop sign as a form of speed control.

Mr. Desroches agreed and said he is happy with the progress they are making with the speed and permanent signs, as well as police monitoring. He said it is a good start.

In another matter the board met with Director of I.T. Chris Oliver about applying for community compact grants. Mr. Oliver explained to the board that some technology in town needs to be upgraded. The grants are competitive state grants and would be no cost to the town.

The board vote unanimously to apply for the grants.

In other business, the board decided to adopt a new online payment system called Invoice Cloud. Town Administrator Julie Hebert said it allows residents to pay town bills online and it is much more user friendly than what they are currently using.

Ms. Hebert also said that she was able to get Invoice Cloud at a lower price than previously expected. They will be ready to start using the new service when the bills come out January 1, 2022.

The board voted unanimously to sign the contract with Invoice Cloud..

In another matter Mr. Desroches informed the board that they received a memo from Building Inspector Jim Marot about making some changes to some permit fees. Mr. Desroches said Mr. Marot would like to increase paper applications by $10 because they take longer to process. He would also like to increase building and electric permits, as well as battery storage for solar by $20 more.

The board voted unanimously to raise the fees as recommended by Mr. Marot.

"I use that building a lot to store stuff," said Mr. Cox. "I think what we proposed would work."

He stated that the building still needs some work and that this would not happen overnight. Significant work has already been done on the building, which he likened to having "put lipstick on a pig."

The building still needs new shingles, siding, and woodwork, and the building will hopefully be ready for NMI's proposal next summer.

"This isn't a project just for [NMI]; this is a project going forward for the Town of Fairhaven," said Mr. Cox.

Still, Mr. McNamara said he had to ask about the elephant in the room: "Where are they all going to park?"

Mr. Hobson was skeptical. "Are you telling me that you want to let one company use the bottom part of the building?"

No, the chair told him. "It's more of a community openness for presenting (maritime education and programs)," explained Mr. McNamara.

"But you can't even put 10 people in that building," said Mr. Hobson.

Mr. McNamara said it would be like a "walk in, walk out" setup.

Mr. Hobson took issue with the proposed shipping container, saying, "The whole waterfront in Fairhaven is looking like a tenement."

He was interrupted by Mr. McNamara saying, "Oh, don't go there, don't go there... I know where you're going."

Mr. Hobson persisted, "I don't want to see a container next to the building ... because people go down there and take pictures of the place. I think containers look ugly."

Hoppy's Landing, named after and once owned by Mr. Hobson himself, is becoming increasingly popular, he said.

"You're already giving the back away to the guy across the street.... You're piecemealing the place apart."

Mr. Hobson said he sold the property to the Town for a low price so the Town could own it, people could go there, sit anywhere they want, and if they get out of their cars they have to pay a parking fee.

As Mr. Hobson mentioned parking, Mr. Cox interjected, "So we're beating a dead horse in the ground here, though."

Mr. Hobson pointed out that he did not interrupt Mr. Cox when he was speaking, and Mr. Cox apologized.

Mr. Hobson continued, "I'm not too happy with what's going on down there. You're giving away the electric, you're giving away part of the downstairs building, you're giving away on weekends — they're parking in the back..."

"But we're giving it away to the public," said Mr. McNamara. "It's a public facility."

"You beat a dead horse to the ground every time we have a meeting," Mr. Cox said to Mr. Hobson.

Nonetheless, Mr. Hobson has the right to speak and have an opinion, said Mr. McNamara, and Mr. Cox vowed that despite the disagreements, "We'll always be friends."

"If you didn't do away with the parking, you'd have a ton of money," Mr. Hobson said to Mr. Cox.

"I didn't do away with the parking," Mr. Cox replied, and then the chair shut down the quarrel.

In response to Mr. Hobson's further questions, Mr. Clement told him, "The idea is to open up that

Are you telling me that you want to let one company use the bottom part of the building?
[Robert "Hoppy" Hobson]

resource to benefit everyone in the town. It's such a beautiful place, and it's such a shame that more can't be done there."

Mr. McNamara suggested that since this was the first time the topic was discussed among the full board, it should be tabled, allowing for time to digest.

"Mr. Cox inserted some closing remarks: "I would rather see that property used for something like this than a parking lot used across the street for the restaurant."

Also, perhaps a shipping container isn't the best option, he added. Committee member Andrew Jones concurred, calling the containers "unsightly" and possibly not allowable within a velocity zone.

"There's a lot more on that end that I think the applicant should look into," said Mr. Jones. "Overall, I think it's a good idea, but it might not be as easy as it sounds right off the bat."

Mr. Hobson emphasized that he was not dead set against the proposal.

The committee then spent a little time discussing the Town Meeting-approved land swap with Fairhaven Shipyard, with Mr. Hobson reiterating his stance that the swap is not in the best interest of the Town or the townspeople. This prompted Mr. McNamara to suggest that Mr. Hobson should stand on Town Meeting floor and ask Town Meeting to rescind its prior vote to allow the Town to swap its 2,500 square feet for Fairhaven Shipyard's 900 square feet.

"It sounds like maybe not a fair swap," said Mr. McNamara.

The committee's opinion is that the trade has not been made with transparency, and Mr. Hobson blames Town Counsel Tom Crotty more than he blames the Select Board.

"The reality is," he said. "Nothing of this makes any sense. Why would we give up 2,500 square feet for 900 square feet ... but 900 square feet of nothing? It just makes zero sense."

Mr. McNamara said no one outside the Select Board and Fairhaven Shipyard representatives knows what's actually involved in the swap and suggested the committee vote to have Mr. Silvia approach the Select Board at its next meeting to request a formal update.

Lastly, the committee voted to allow Mr. Cox to shut down the Hoppy's Landing parking meter from December through the end of March. According to Mr. Cox, the Town collects about $4,600 in parking revenue via credit card throughout the year but spends about $3,870 in meter fees. Mr. McNamara called it "shocking."

Mr. Cox said between December and March, the meters only bring in a total of $21, with $0 in January and February. He said that taking the meters offline during those months would help save money, but Mr. McNamara wanted to see a complete financial statement before voting to stop meter use altogether. He said he wanted to know how much the Town receives in cash from the meters first.

Mr. McNamara said it was "jaw-dropping" that the meters could take in about $4,000 in parking via credit card yet expend about 90% of it in usage fees.

"If this was a mistake, we need to recognize that quickly," said Mr. McNamara. In the meantime, the meters will be shut off December to March.

Contaminated quahog brood stock are transferred from areas in the Taunton River and then out planted into designated closed Town of Fairhaven transplant sites.

Fairhaven plants these shellfish for natural purification of town waters as well as propagation for permitted commercial and recreational shellfish harvesting. The transfer site is closed to public shell fishing from one to three years to ensure public health safety and to allow the quahogs to spawn. The adult quahogs generally have very high survival rates.

Fostering community benefit and supporting the Town of Fairhaven shell fishing initiatives are significant cornerstones of the Northeast Maritime Institute Restorative Aquaculture program.

Northeast Maritime Aquaculture program to help Fhvn prog.

The first in an occasional series by David Bill, Restorative Aquaculture Program Director at NMI

Northeast Maritime Institute (NMI) is currently developing comprehensive educational, industry collaboration, and community outreach programming in Restorative Aquaculture.

Since the collapse of the New England ground fishing industry, the continuous threat of the diminishing global wild fish stocks, climate change impacts on food production, and community food security concerns, aquaculture offers some viable, responsible, and hopeful restorative solutions to these dire challenges.

On three separate days during the month of September 2021, the Northeast Maritime Restorative Aquaculture program assisted the Town of Fairhaven Shellfish Wardens propagate town shell fishing waters with brood stock quahog clams.
